

Contents

Volunteer Engagement 2.0: Ideas and Insights Changing the World

About the Book	ix
Robert J. Rosenthal
Foreword	xi
Holly Ross, Executive Director, Drupal Association
Introduction	xv
Greg Baldwin, President, VolunteerMatch
Part One: Changing Times	1
Chapter 1 Big Shifts That Will Change Volunteerism for the Better	3
Tobi Johnson, MA, CVA, President, Tobi Johnson & Associates
Chapter 2 A History of Change in Volunteer Engagement	20
Susan J. Ellis, President, Energize, Inc.	See other books by Ellis at https://energizeinc.com/bios/susan_j_ellis
Chapter 3 Debunking the Myths of Volunteer Engagement	32
Sarah Jane Rehnborg, CVA, PhD	See other books by Rehnborg at https://energizeinc.com/bios/sarah-jane-rehnborg
Chapter 4 Rethinking the Status Quo	44
Evan Hochberg, Chief Strategy Officer, and Mei Cobb, Volunteer Engagement Director, United Way Worldwide

Chapter 5	Engaging Millennial and Younger Volunteers Aria Finger, Chief Operating Officer, DoSomething.org and President, TMI Agency	57
Chapter 6	The Great Boomer Volunteer Revolution: Boom or Bust? Beth Steinhorn, President, JFFixler Group	69
Part Two:	Changing Relationships	83
Chapter 7	Keeping the Volunteers You Have John L. Lipp, Associate VP, Volunteer Engagement, JDRF	85
Chapter 8	Wholly Engaged: Integrating Volunteer and Donor Programs Kelly Moran, Associate VP of Community Development, and Taylor Mallia, Executive VP of Development, National MS Society	97
Chapter 9	A New Engagement Model for the Internet Era Mark Surman, Executive Director, Mozilla Foundation	110
Chapter 10	Meet Your New Board Linda Davis, CEO, Center of Volunteer and Nonprofit Leadership, and David Styers, Manager of Program & Business Development, Presidio Institute	123
Part Three:	Changing Technology	135
Chapter 11	Volunteer Engagement on the Social Web Amy Sample Ward, CEO, NTEN: The Nonprofit Technology Network	137
Chapter 12	Microvolunteering for Big Impact Mike Bright, Founder, Help From Home	153
Chapter 13	Virtual Volunteering: Are We Finally Ready to Talk about Direct Service? Jayne Cravens, Consultant and Researcher	169

See other books by Cravens at https://energizeinc.com/bios/jayne_cravens

Chapter 14	Getting the Most Out of Hackathons for Social Good Scott Henderson, CEO and Founder, Sandbox Communities	182
Part Four:	Changing Corporate Perspectives	195
Chapter 15	The Power and Unrealized Promise of Skilled Volunteering Meg Garlinghouse, Director, and Alison Dorsey, Manager, LinkedIn for Good	197
Chapter 16	Partnering with Workplace Volunteer Programs Angela Parker and Chris Jarvis, Co-Founders, Realized Worth	210
Chapter 17	Becoming Powered by Pro Bono Alethea Hannemann, Vice President of Product and National Programs, The Taproot Foundation	224
Chapter 18	How to Get the Right Pro Bono Expertise for the Job Deirdre White, CEO, and Amanda MacArthur, VP of Global Pro Bono & Engagement, PYXERA Global	239
Chapter 19	Volunteering and the Future of Cause Marketing Joe Waters, Author, Founder of SelfishGiving.com	252
Part Five:	Changing Strategies	267
Chapter 20	Measuring the Volunteer Program Beth Kanter, Author and Master Trainer	269
Chapter 21	The New Volunteer Manager's Toolkit Jennifer R. Bennett, CVA, Senior Manager, Education & Training, VolunteerMatch	283
Chapter 22	National Service for the Twenty-First Century Wendy Spencer, Chief Executive Officer, Corporation for National and Community Service	296
Chapter 23	Service Enterprises: Strategic Human Capital Engagement Amy Smith, Chief Strategy Officer and President of Action Networks–Points of Light, and Sue Carter Kahl, President, SMCK Consulting	308

Chapter 24	Leading Big Volunteer Operations	322
	Carla Campbell Lehn, CVA, Library Programs Consultant, California State Library
Chapter 25	Taking Charge of Your Professional Development	334
	Katherine H. Campbell, CVA, Executive Director of the Council for Certification in Volunteer Administration
	Afterword	349
	Robert Egger, Founder and President of L.A. Kitchen and CForward
	About the Editor	353
	Index	355